Training description

This course covers the concepts and basic characteristics of the latest digital technologies (e.g., AI, big data, cloud, 5G, etc.). This course does not cover advanced learning content, such as the detailed principles of each digital technology. The course content includes policies and cases using the latest technologies to improve public administration, education, medical care, environment, and social infrastructure. In addition, this course introduces some of the issues that have arisen from technology (e.g., unemployment, digital divide, etc.) and countermeasures.
