Training description

Data is crucial in policymaking, public service delivery, and development, informing decisions regarding program design, resource allocation, and the evaluation of interventions. Despite its potential, governments and policymakers risk not capturing the full value of data when there are no clearly defined processes and rules for how data is managed within and across institutions. Establishing and implementing a data governance framework can ensure transparency, accountability, and public trust.

This course introduces the key elements of a data governance framework and leads participants through the framework development process through a guided approach. The course will also reference international frameworks and guidelines and offer insights on designing a data governance framework relevant for the local contexts of developing countries.

By the end of the course, participants will be equipped with the knowledge and tools to build an effective data governance framework for their respective institutions or nations.

With the generous support of the Global Gateway initiative of the European Union, participation is free of charge for selected applicants, including two nights of accommodation and meals for a comfortable and immersive learning experience. Participants or their organizations will be responsible for covering their own travel expenses to and from Kampala, Uganda.
