Training description

This training aims to strengthen technical capabilities on evidence-based digital policies to achieve Universal and Meaningful Connectivity. Participants will learn to interpret and use ICT statistics and other types of evidence (geospatial sources, policy assessments) for designing, monitoring and evaluating evidence-based digital policies. Through lectures, interactive and hands-on sessions, they will engage with experts generating and applying evidence-based insights to inform and communicate relevant issues for digital development policies.

Organized by ITU with funding from the Global Gateway Initiative of the European Union, this training is offered free of charge for selected participants, including accommodation, meals (breakfasts and lunches) and extracurricular activities. Participants or their organizations must cover travel costs* to Bangkok, Thailand, including visa costs if applicable.

*Applicants from Bangladesh, Bhutan, Cambodia, Lao, Nepal, Timor-Leste, Vietnam may be also eligible for travel support.
